KSW CONSTRUCTION FINISHES FEBRUARY WITH THREE AWARDS

KSW is recognized by Associated Builders and Contractors and Star Building Systems

MADISON, Wis. (Feb. 26, 2010) – It's no secret that last year wasn't easy for anyone in the commercial construction industry. "Bad economy or not, we knew that time would go on and we would have to rely on our strengths," said KSW President Dean Slaby. KSW Construction is rounding out the month of February with three very important awards for 2009: Associated Builders and Contractors (ABC) Gold Projects of Distinction Award, ABC's Platinum Award of Honor for Zero Recordable Safety Accidents, and Star Building Systems' Master Builder Award in two different categories. "We stayed true to what has made our company successful over the years; we build quality projects, we keep our jobsites safe, and we form solid relationships," said Slaby.

ABC of Wisconsin has been recognizing contractors in the state with the Projects of Distinction award for 17 years. According to Chris Reinhart, marketing director for ABC of Wisconsin, "To win an award in this program, you have to be a step above the competition, whether it is design, quality of work, or overcoming some unusual challenges along the way." At the banquet this past month KSW's project, Stoughton Road Retail, was given the honor of Gold Projects of Distinction in the Metal Building $0-$1 million category.

ABC also awards those contractors that stand out from the rest in terms of safety. At the annual ABC Conference KSW received the Platinum Award of Honor for Zero Recordable Accidents in 2009. With a running total of more than 650 days of safety, it's not a goal that KSW takes lightly. For years KSW has been recognized by ABC with the Safety Training and Evaluation Process (STEP) Awards, and the company received the No Lost Time Accidents Award in 2008 as well. "Our field places great importance on this component of construction. Weekly Toolbox Talks and great teamwork on the part of KSW employees has contributed to such a solid record," said Slaby.

The third award that KSW received this past month is the Star Building Systems' Master Builder Award. Again for the Stoughton Road Retail project, KSW is the proud recipient of the "Best of Wisconsin District" and the "Best of Small Commercial" categories. Since early 2008, KSW has been an authorized dealer of Star Building Systems. "We are humbled to learn that we are being recognized by such great organizations in the commercial construction industry. KSW had a great run in 2009, despite many challenges, and for that we are extremely proud," said Slaby.

Great Dane Billiards Lounge, constructed by KSW Construction Corporation, is another great addition to Hilldale as well as Madison's popular brewpub. This expansion complements the already existing dining area with a pool hall and bar. Special features of the project include rustic style lighting, wood paneling, pub style rounded booths and a large, rectangular bar which adds to the brew house feel. The Great Dane's expertise in brewing combined with KSW's restaurant construction expertise and cost-effectiveness.
