KSW CONSTRUCTION SUPPORTS MADISON CHILDREN'S MUSEUM
KSW Construction sponsors National Careers in Construction Week

MADISON, Wis., (September 21, 2007) – KSW Construction Corporation is a proud sponsor of Madison Children's Museum's (MCM) National Careers in Construction Week, October 14-20, according to KSW Construction Corporation president, Dean Slaby. "National Careers in Construction Week will allow MCM visitors to explore construction, architecture and urban planning, with a focus on issues and topics affecting kids' daily experiences with city and neighborhood environments," said Slaby. The construction industry is one of the nation's largest industries, employing 7.2 million individuals in the U.S., and the number of wage and salary jobs in the construction industry is expected to grow approximately 15 percent through the year 2014.

"Programs like National Careers in Construction Week are made possible through the support of community partners like KSW Construction and create opportunities for children to learn through play about how the construction industry is part of their lives each day," said Jenni Collins, Madison Children's Museum Director of Development and External Relations. Activities during Careers in Construction Week are listed at the Museum's website (www.madisonchildrensmuseum.org). Participation in these hands-on activities includes the opportunity to visit MCM's Building Boom exhibit. The exhibit is organized around four guiding steps, Think, Plan, Design & Build, which are the basis of any design or building project, large or small. The exhibit's central feature, a room-sized model of downtown Madison that kids can manipulate, places a significant emphasis on sense of place and geography. Unique to Building Boom is that this interactive exhibit combines the wonders of building, machinery and tools, with the "nitty gritty" of city planning and smart growth.
